

Planting A Seed: Creating Communities for People with Aphasia and their Families in the Tri-State Area

June 4, 2005
8:00am - 4:00pm

Alumni Auditorium
Columbia University Medical Center
650 West 168th Street
New York, NY

The National Aphasia Association (NAA) presented its first regional conference in the tri-state area for people with Aphasia, their caregivers, and rehabilitation professionals. Addressed at the conference were ways in which services could be enhanced for those who desperately need help. The conference included the most qualified medical professionals whom offered information on the ways that caregivers can increase their support for those affected by this devastating and often misunderstood disorder. For more information about Aphasia, please visit www.aphasia.org

The event was co-sponsored by the Center for Bioethics in cooperation with the American Stroke Association - A Division of the American Heart Association.